

As a human being

As a human being, I am interested in everything under the sun that solicits close investigation. As an artist however, I have no direct use for these things, unless they sink to the subconscious, where they will slowly start ripening. Exempt from the rational, they will shed their names, their shells, their primeval image and language. Eventually they become a rich layer of compost, the raw material that fuels my artistic creativity."

Geert Van der Borcht